

Advancing Innovative School-Based Health Strategies to Reduce Trauma, Advance Health Equity, and Help California's Children Heal

Thursday, October 29th at 2:00 PM PST

Join Futures Without Violence and Healthy Schools Campaign for an important conversation about the impact of trauma on California's children and new strategies and funding that can help schools support health and address adversity, increase trauma-informed care for children, and prevent violence.

During the Webinar we will:

Advance innovative strategies to expand school-based health services to increase trauma-informed care, enhance health and education equity, and prevent and address trauma.

Hear from California leaders working on the front lines to address these issues.
Dr. Daniel Lee, Deputy Superintendent of Equity, CA Dept. of Education
Richard Thomason, Director of Policy, Blue Shield of California Foundation
Mayra Alvarez, President, The Children's Partnership
Lisa Eisenberg, Policy Director, California School-Based Health Alliance
Lena O'Rourke, Futures Without Violence/Healthy Schools Campaign
Marc Philpart, Managing Director, Policy Link/Alliance of Boys & Men of Color
Virginia Duplessis, Futures Without Violence, Associate Director of Health

Learn first-hand from a school-based health center director and a student about how trauma-informed programs can help youth heal and promote health and education equity.

Jenn Rader, James Morehouse Project, El Cerrito HS Health & Wellness Center
Alika Africa, El Cerrito High School, Class of 2020

Build momentum for a coordinated strategy to support this new opportunity to increase trauma-informed care in schools throughout California.

Please click here to register today to receive your link to join our Webinar.