

SAN DIEGO COUNTY MANDATED REPORTERS: WE WANT TO HEAR FROM YOU!

The decision of whether to report suspected abuse or neglect to child welfare services can be difficult and have a profound impact on children and families. To better understand current practice, several of San Diego County's public children's services agencies have partnered with Evident Change and Casey Family Programs to conduct a collaborative review of child abuse reporting trends and practices in the county.

As a part of that effort, Evident Change is hoping to better understand the perspective of mandated reporters in San Diego County who may grapple with this responsibility regularly. As a mandated reporter who knows about responses to possible abuse or neglect of children in your community, your input is highly valuable.

Please help us share this flyer or the following survey link widely with others in San Diego County who may serve in a mandated reporter capacity.

SURVEY DETAILS

We are seeking mandated reporters from many disciplines and practices to complete the survey, including but not limited to law enforcement, education, medical care, resource families, social services, and mental and behavioral health care.

The survey should take about 15 minutes to complete and will be open for responses until June 10, 2023.
