

Friday, December 1, 2017

“The child may not remember, but the body remembers.”

TWO FREE screenings of an award-winning film presented by the Napa Child Abuse Prevention Council. From the director James Redford, Resilience: The Biology of Stress & The Science of Hope shines a spotlight on childhood trauma, which is considered to be one of the leading causes of everything from heart disease and cancer to substance abuse and depression. The film chronicles the promising beginnings of a national movement to prevent childhood trauma, treat Toxic Stress, and greatly improve the health of future generations.

Agenda	Screening 1	Screening 2*
Registration & Light Snacks	9:30am	5:30pm
Film	10:00am	6:00pm
Panel Discussion & Q&A	11:00am	7:00pm

*Screening 2 is also open to parents and the community.

This event is jointly hosted by Lilliput Families and Boys & Girls Clubs of Napa Valley.

Register ONLINE or at the door!

For more information, call Lilliput Families Napa office at 707-299-3909

This event is designed for social service providers, educators, childcare providers, organizational leaders, health professionals, and mentors to better understand the impact of stress caused by adverse childhood experiences and how they can take an active role in building resiliency in their home, workplace, and larger community.

LOCATION:
Boys & Girls Clubs of Napa Valley

Napa Clubhouse
1515 Pueblo Ave.
Napa, CA 94558