ACEs and Nourishment

How can ACEs research inform our understanding of nutrition, obesity, diet-related disease, eating habits, food choices, and relationship to food? How do we apply a trauma-informed lens to address food insecurity, health, and disordered eating? What role can food play in healing trauma? Share research, articles, stories, and ideas that can help us better nourish ourselves and our communities.

Resilience USA

Among the provisions that align with S. 774, according to the office of Sen. Heidi Heitkamp (D-ND), are the following (a section by section summary of the bill is attached):

- Sec 411 – Expanding National Health Service Corps eligibility to schools and communities
- Sec 502– Prioritizing trauma-informed training as part of graduate education under the Behavioral Health Workforce Education and Training program
- Sec 506 – Authorizing the CDC to support states’ efforts to collect and report data on adverse childhood experiences through existing public health surveys
- Sec 513 – Creating an interagency task force to identify and disseminate trauma-informed best practices within federal grant programs
- Sec 514 – Authorizing grants that link educational agencies with mental health systems to increase student access to evidence-based trauma support services to help prevent and mitigate trauma that children and youth experience.
- Sec 515 – Increasing funding authorization for the National Child Traumatic Stress Network

ACEs Connection Tracker

Measuring the progress of your ACEs initiative

Welcome to your Sonoma County ACEs Connection Community Tracker!

What is this?

This app helps you keep track of the ACEs science presentations your ACEs initiative has made in your community, by location, sector, subsector, date and who did the presentation. It also keeps track of how the organizations in your community are moving toward implementing trauma-informed and resilience-practices based on ACEs science.

How can you use this app?

Your initiative can tailor outreach efforts towards less represented sectors and parts of your community. And you can troubleshoot around barriers to educating and engaging organizations.

What's included in this app?

1. ACEs Science Presentations

Presentations Map: Get a bird's eye view of all presentations, and info about each presentation. Organize the presentations by sector

Presentation Data: Search the data by sector, subsector, presenter and organization.

2. Trauma-informed Organizations Tracker

Tracker Map: Get a bird's eye view of all ACEs initiative member organizations participating in the journey to becoming trauma-informed and resilience-building, and where they are in that journey.

Tracker Data: Track organizations' progress by sector and subsector, and by individual milestone. After examining a plethora of trauma-informed assessment tools for several
