

Protective Factors & ACEs: Meeting Families with Hope and Healing

Please join us for an interactive, virtual session to learn about the Five Protective Factors Framework and how to leverage a healing approach in the context of screening for Adverse Childhood Events (ACEs).

SUMMARY:

This session will build the capacity of providers serving families with young children (physicians, behavioral health clinicians, social workers, case managers) to approach family interactions with a protective factors framework. As California implements its initiative to screen for Adverse Childhood Experiences Statewide, providers experience significant gaps in knowledge about best practices to engage families in the screening process in a way that supports healing. The Five Protective Factors Framework, when integrated with ACEs screening, provides a strength-based approach to develop these best practices hand in hand with families.
